ANNUAL REPORT

July 2012 - June 2013

White Pine Conservation District

Ely, Nevada

The White Pine Conservation District is a subdivision of the Nevada State Government. It was organized and voted into being on December 15, 1941, by the landowners of the District to help them solve their soil, water and plant management problems. The Districts boundaries coincide with the county lines and encompasses 5,699,200 acres.

The District is administered by a seven (7) person Board of Supervisors. Five (5) are voted into office by the county electorate and one (1) each is appointed to the Board by the White Pine County Commissioner and the Ely City Council. These supervisors serve their term without compensation.
